I.

Written by an Indian Moslem, Judge of the High Court in Bengal. A clever, but unreliable, apology.

The author is strongly inclined to be an apologist for the prophet.

An article that represents Mohammed quite fairly.

One of the least biased discussions.

Koelle: Mohammed and Mohammedanism, I, II.

The author is inclined to emphasize the evil in the life of the prophet.

Muir: Life of Mohamet.

Probably the best authority in the English language.

Smith: Mohammed and Mohammedanism, II.

A strong apology for the prophet and written in an attractive style.

Smith: The Bible and Islam, I.

Is inclined to favor Mohammed, but on the whole is fair.
